OUR BENEVOLENT INSTITUTIONS.

A Reformed Civil-Service in Connection with Them an Absolute Necessity.

Special to the Indianapolls Journal. NEW YORK, May 30 .- Before the Civil-service Reform League, in session in this city, Mr. Louis Howland, of Indianapolis, read the following paper, which created a profound impression, because of the scandalous mismanagement of the Insane Hospital in that State, which it recorded:

My theme is a reformed civil-service in con-nection with benevolent institutions. This im-plies, not only that there are evils in the exist-ing system to be corrected, but that those evils bear with peculiar force upon benevolent institutions. And as the evils are the same, whether found in the postal service or in insane hos-pitals, the special greviousness of those evils when seen in the administration of our hospitals and asylums must be due to some peculiar feature in these institutions.

One of those "waiters upon popular provi-dence whom we so humorously call statesmen" —I suppose Mr. Lowell is good authority here once said that no man had a right to be heard on the tariff question who had not had a personal contact with business. I imagine that it is some such notion as this which has prompted the League's committee to assign to me the above subject. It can make not the slightest difference how ignorant or foolish I may be, for I assuredly have had a personal contact of the most violent kind, not indeed with civil-service reform—for about that I know nothing practically, never having seen it in operation—but with benevolent institutions; and you have the word of the aforesaid statesman for it, that this is quite sufficient to qualify me for the task in hand.

I need not speak in this company of the evils

I need not speak in this company of the evils to be corrected; we know them; we have met them often, and we have hung our heads with shame when the conclusion was forced upon us that they were so firmly intrenched in our nathat they were so armly intremened in our hational life, that a President whom we sent to Washington to fight and destroy them, had by necessary implication admitted that he could make no headway against them.

But I will take up a little of your time to the practical workings of the spoils system in the State charities of Indiana as revealed by the investigation of our Civil-service Reform Asso-

A charity has two sides to it. The man who administers it owes a duty not only to the persons creating this charity but also to the persons for whose benefit it is created. Of course, I know that the performance of the first neces-sarily involves the performance of the second luty; but the point is here that the omission of a duty may entail some dreadful wrong upon suffering humanity. A postmaster has no fellow-creatures to care for; he owes no duty to the letters dropped into the letter-boxes; his duty is to the general public, and it is the general pub-lic alone that suffers from his faithlessness. When, however, a man at the head of an insane hospital is negligent or criminal, the general public suffers, it is true, but that is as nothing compared to the ills which fall to the lot of the poor lunatics placed in his charge. Now, I take it that the fundamental idea of the spoils system is to get all you can and to keep, all you get, and this idea cannot be carried into practical operation unless the subordinates are in complete sympathy, on this and all other points, with their chief. Not only must they be in sympathy with him, but they must feel a very deep sense of colligation to him. He must be able to trust them, though no one else does. Knowing this rule of practical politics, and knowing that there were many opportunities for plundering at the Insane Hospital, we were not surprised to find that the Democratic head of that institution had remembered the "boys in the trenches," and had placed none but Demo-

Some years ago there was an honest Democratic board of trustees managing the hospital—the Fishback board. A prominent produce dealer, now clerk of Marion county, and defendant in an indictment charging him with a violation of the federal election laws, John E. Sullivan by name, filled an order for creamery butter with oleomargarine. The Fishback board did the most natural thing in the world for honest men when they resolved that, as they were getting oleomargarine they would pay for oleomargarine; that is they docked Mr. Sullivan's claim about $400. That gentleman could not understand why a Democrat should be subjected to such discourteous treatment at the hands of Democrats, so he carried his grievance to the next Legislature, and by threats erats on guard.

ance to the next Legislature, and by threats and promises he succeeded in getting Mr. Fishback legislated out of office. This was in 1883; and the measure by which this result was accomplished is known as the Brown bill—as infamous a piece of legislation as can be found upon any of our statute books. So the whole difficulty grew out of a quarrel about butter. But did not a dispute about an apple precipitate

This law provided that the board of trustees should be elected by the General Assembly—that is, that it should be a strictly partisan board. The members of the board were responsible to no authority, for they could neither be removed nor impeached; the only remedy against them was in the courts, by a suit for the vacation of their offices. Dr. Harrison, the present president of the board, lobbied actively for the bill, as he had been promised the place he afterwards received. This at once established the most friendly relations between the Doctor and Mr. Sullivan. So with other gentlemen—notably Mr. Jerry Hall, the steward. The members of the General Assembly, too, were promised favors in the way of positions for friends and relatives. Such faithful work was prowned with success. Mr. Sullivan was avenged. It is interesting to note here that the new board reversed the action of the old one, and paid Mr. Sullivan the full creamery price for his oleomargarine. It was not long now before the whole institution was in the hands, not merely of Democrats, but of Democrats who were friends to Dr. Harrison. Then the trouble began, or rather, it didn't begin till July, 1886, when the Indiana Civil-service Reform Association suddenly grew inquisitive. One warm day in July-how well I remember it -the committee met at the Denison Hotel and resolved that an investigation would be worth while. We hadn't had a real investigation in Indiana, unless you count the postoffice investigation in July of the year before. It is true that the results in that case were not encouraging, but we were undismayed. So Messrs. Foulke and Morton visited the hospital, and it happened that that very morning a large batch of maggot-infested butter had been hidden in the sewer, because, as one of the parties to this concealment naively said, "We didn't want them civil-service fellows to get on to it." This was a most promising start. The committee published its report. The trustees answered. The committee replied. And the fight went on through the newspapers all summer. The Republican orators took up the cry, and every stump resounded with shrieks of maggoty butter and cholera hogs. The campaign was fought on that issue, and before it was over we had the Republican party, much to the surprise of some Republicans, I suspect, hopelessly committed to the cause of civil-service reform. It served them well, however, for they carried the State, and came very nearly carrying the Legislature, in spite of the outrageous gerrymander of the

The investigation went on before two legislative committees, and the testimony taken fills about 2,000 printed pages. Every charge made was proved, but, as in the Jones case, we got no remedy because the Senate was Democratic and the House Republican.

In brief, the charges were "pernicious political activity," or "offensive partisanship," whichextent that the wards were, on occasions of political interest, practically deserted by the attendants. Of course, the harmless system of voluntary contributions was in vogue. Maggoty butter was furnished the bospital at four different times, and it twice found its way to the tables of the patients. These worms were graphically described by one of the witnesses as baving great black heads, and having a very marked resemblance to the thousand-legged worm or centipede. Diseased pork was so common that many of the attendants testified that they never ate pork at the hospital. Provisions of all sorts were frequently bad; though enough was paid to get the best. Mr. John E. Sullivan's goods usually passed inspection, though he did have a little friction occasionally, owing to the old-fashioned notions of the superintendent, Dr.

The trustees violated the law very often by purchasing supplies without advertising for bids. Dr. Harrison voted himself a salary almost twice as large as he was legally entitled to. Mr. Gapen, another one of the trustees, put in most of his time running a saw-mill in Arkansas, though he drew his salary regularly. The attendents were incompetent and brutal. Escapes were numerous. One of the patients got away, and never was found until he was dead. Fights between patients were almost of daily Fights between patients were almost of daily occurrence. One man was scalded to death in a bath-tub; another was killed by a fellow-sufferer; one woman fell down the elevator shaft, etc. word, the management was about as inefficient and corrupt as it could be. The spoilsmen may well point to it as the triumph of their

The moral is so plain that I need hardly draw it. It is, of course, the absolute divorce of such establishments from politics. We tried to accomplish it and failed. But we propose to follow this thing up and transmit the fight to our low this thing up and transmit the fight to our children, if we are not allowed to win the victory. The merit system the only medicine sold by druggists under a trouble—would care all the evils I have constituted. The object of that system is a refunded. Read guarantee on bottle-wrap, er.

very simple one—to get the right man in the right place. The business of an usame hospital is to care for the insane, and not to care for the bummers and heelers who disgrace our politics. And the right man at the head of an insane hospital would recognize its proper function, and would see that that function was performed.

The defenders of the Indiana Hospital for the Insane boldly avowed that it was conducted on the partisan plan, and insisted that the question between them and us was a question of system. Very well. I much prefer to draw an indictment against a system. Still, there are decent partisans, but they were not in control in the institution whose history I have been giving the institution whose history I have been giving

We can't trust men too far. They must be limited by law. If the head officers refuse to choose their subordinates wisely, the people, who foot the bills, must interfere. As Mr. Cleveland said, some time back in the dim past (how like a far-away echo it sounds!), "Pablic office is a public trust,"and we must see that the

We are perfectly confident that the reformed system meets all the difficulties. It has been tried, and wherever it has been given a fair trial it has succeeded. It does not recognize the divine right of a man to an effice; but it does recognize the right of the whole people to have their business conducted by men who are fit for

Our duty, then, is two-fold: First. Toinsist upon the universal adoption of civil-service re-form, and, second, to see to it—to quote Mr. Cleveland once more—that "civil-service re-form is in good faith enforced."

Another Democratic Caucus Reveals Furth

Dissensions Concerning the Measure. WASHINGTON, May 30 .- The attendance members at the Democratic House caucus, night, was even thinner than on Monday night not more than ninety persons being present ha an hour after the caucus had been called to o der. Mr. McCreary again presided, but Speak Carlisle and Mr. Randall were not on han Before the proceedings had run along far, M Springer woke up the caucus by the present tion of a resolution binding all the Democra to vote in the House for the bill as it com the caucus, and only for si amendments as are presented in House by the Democratic members of ways and means committee. The internal reenue sections of the bill have been only light touched upon so far, and this resolution stirre up the North Carolina members to a bitter or slaught upon the bill. They declared that the people wanted an unconditional repeal of the bacco tax instead of the compromise reduction made by the committee on ways and means, and they also served notice upon the caucus that the California members, as well as themselves would have to vote for a proposition to remove the revenue tax on fruit-brandy-let it com from the Republican or Democratic side-if th caucus refused to include that provision in th

Mr. Bacon, of New York, offered a resolution which was adopted, pledging the caucus to pro-ceed with the consideration of the tariff bill i the House immediately after disposition of the legislative appropriation bill

Another resolution, offered by Mr. Springer was also adopted, requiring all Democratic members to be present or secure pairs during the five-minute debate in the House.

Mr. Stone, of Missouri, offered a proposition to restore the duty on lead ore to within 5 p cent of the existing rate, and he pointed of the importance of this industry to his people. The amendment was discussed and referred to the Democratic members of the ways and means committee for report.

Paris green has been placed on the free list.

Two hours' hard work resulted in much progress, and the caucus then discussed the pottery clauses, which are obnoxious to the New Jersey people. The proposition took the shape of an amendment fixing the duties on pottery about 5 per cent., on an average, below existing rates, which was referred to the ways and means committee. In the matter of rice, flour and rice-meal the classification fixed in the bill was wiped out, and the present duty was reduced from 20 to 15 per cent. ad valorem.

At this, point Mr. Springer renewed his mo-tion to bind the Democratic members to support in the House only such amendments as were indorsed by the Democratic members of the ways and means committee (who are placed in charge of the bill) or the caucus. The mo-tion was adopted without division. Adjourned without date.

Deputy Sheriffs Roughly Handled.

DULUTH, Minn., May 30.-Two deputy heriffs went, ten days ago, to a Deer lake Indian camp, in Ittasca county, to arrest an Indian, Cut-Face, for the murder of squaw-man Joe Bonville. Arriving there, they learned he had left, and followed him to Net lake camp. Enticing him into their canoe they bound him and started off. An alarm was given, and sixteen bucks gave chase, soon overtaking them. After a fight in which both sheriffs were badly handled, but not seriously injured, Cut-Face was released and both white men captured. Through the intercession of an Indian who spoke English the sheriffs were released, but told that they would not be allowed to take any Indian for killing a white man.

The Most Complete Newspaper in all Departments in the State of Indiana.

No newspaper in the West is more widely or more favorably known than the INDIANAPOLIS JOURNAL By the display of enterprise and strict attention to the wants of the reading public, it has taken a leading position among the most prominent journals of the country, and is certainly among the best. Among the newspapers of the State it is pre-eminently the best, and Indiana readers can nowhere else find what circulates largely in every county in Indiana, and has correspondents in every town and village of impor tance. Its market reports are prepared with the greatest care possible, and no pains or expense are spared to make them accurate and absolutely reliable. It is the only newspaper in the State owning and publishing all the news furnished by the two great press associations (the Western Associated Press and the United Press), in addition to which it furnishes an abundance of special service from all the principal cities of the country. It has been, and will in future be, the aim of the publishers to make the INDIAN-APOLIS JOURNAL a perfect and complete newspaper, deficient in no department or particular. The paper challenges comparison with any of its contemporaries. The approach of the great campaign of 1888 renders it desirable for every citizen to have a first-class newspaper; in fact, it will be impossible for him to keep fairly abreast of the times without such a paper. Great political battles are to be fought in the State and Nation, and their conduct and progress the Jour-NAL will carefully record. No Indiana reader, cer tainly no Indiana Republican, should be without the JOURNAL in the coming campaign. While it is thoroughly and soundly Republican in politics, devoted to the interest of the Republican party, the JOURNAL will not allow its news to be colored by partisan bins, but will give the news of the day without fear or favor. The present session of the national Congress will be among the most important held in recent years, and questions of great national moment will be considered. Every citizen is interested in the pending legislation, and can keep himself thoroughly posted by a perusal of the JOURNAL's news columns, in which the doings of Congress will be fully reported. In addition to its news features the JOURNAL re gales its readers with the productions of some of the best known literary men and women of the day. Many of the most celebrated magazine writers and authors are contributors to its literary columns, making it a paper for the household and home circle. Special arrangements have been made for features of this character, which will appear in the JOURNAL during the coming year. These appear most largely in the SUNDAY JOURNAL, which is a special edition, and can be subscribed for and received exclusive of the DAILY
